

Basketball Tape Analysis

Control What YOU Can Control

Reviewing and analyzing game tape is an essential component in the improvement of play calling and partnering. You are learning to evaluate yourself through visualization. Be honest and open with your partners; giving feedback professionally and respectfully when analyzing game tape was a crew.

DEVELOP THE SKILL OF TAPE ANALYSIS

1. Spend 3 minutes observing your appearance.

- Does my uniform fit properly?
- Am I running smoothly?
- Do I appear to be physically fit?
- Are my signals precise and strong?
- Are my eyes looking directly at the scorer when reporting to the table?

2. Spend 3 minutes observing rotations.

- Are rotations sufficient in relationship to the type of defense being run?
- Is non-verbal communication being displayed during rotations?
- Has the crew missed a rotation?
- Did the crew get caught in a ball rotation either during a shot or steal?
- Why did the crew get caught in a ball rotation?
- What could we have done to prevent getting caught in the rotation?

3. Spend 5 minutes observing floor coverage with crew.

Put the tape on pause during three plays and observe the heads and eyes of each official. You are taking a snapshot picture.

- How many eyes are on the ball?
- Who has the competitive match-ups?
- Who has off-ball coverage?
- Do we all have an open lane of vision?
- Are we refereeing in the future?

4. Review Plays

5. Communicate.

- Did crew communicate with each other on the floor?
- Did crew use correct mechanics from the approved Mechanics Manual?
